Adding Pizzazz: How to Develop and Deliver Impactful Presentations, 2nd Edition

Healthcare practitioners are often called upon to share their expertise with colleagues. They might be asked to make presentations at patient support groups, professional rounds, workshops, meetings, webinars, and/or conferences. Often these experts have not developed strong presentation skills; consequently, many are reluctant to give presentations. The ability to plan and deliver high quality presentations is an art and a discipline with a clear goal—to enable participants to change in some way that addresses an identified gap in practice or opportunity for growth. In this newly released 2nd edition of Adding Pizzazz, healthcare professionals learn how to enhance their presentation skills.

These are not actual test questions, nor have they been psychometrically tested. They do, however, align with the June 2017 NPD Board Certification Test Content Outline. Each test item provides feedback about the testing domain, the rationale, and a reference for the content of the question to serve as a study aide. The tests are not designed to be the sole source of study but may help identify areas of strength and weakness. Success on these exams does not guarantee success on the NPD Certification Exam.
